

“How Many Times Do I Have to Tell You?” – Organization Strategies for Parents

Are you tired of tripping over toys? When you tell your kids to clean their rooms, do they just shove everything under the bed? Are you tired of feeling like you're the only person in the house who does any chores?

In this presentation, you'll learn strategies to organize kids' toys and school papers. Plus, we'll discuss ways to get your kids to help with housework, so your home life can be more peaceful and productive.

In this interactive presentation, attendees will gain ideas, tips, and proven strategies to create dramatic changes in the following areas:

1. Understanding your kids and yourself
Determine what you're willing to tolerate, so you can set appropriate boundaries.
2. Organizing kids' spaces
Learn the fundamental principles of organizing, so you can create easy-to-maintain systems for kids' toys, clothes, and other belongings.
3. Getting kids to pitch in
Discuss easy, fun, age-appropriate ways to include your kids in household organizing activities and chores.
4. Organizing kids' papers
Discover creative ways to tame the stacks of school papers that find their way home.

Key Benefits Attendees will know how to establish age-appropriate organizing and household chore systems that will help create a harmonious home. They'll also receive a comprehensive handout that will provide lasting guidance on the tools and techniques covered in the presentation.
